

SCIS Pudong Celebrates United Nations International Day of Peace

Shanghai Community International School, Pudong Campus celebrated its annual United Nations International Day of Peace on 27 September.

The day opened with a beautiful presentation of flags representing the lower school's diverse population from around the world. The assembly culminated with a colorful display of the things that both unite us, and make us unique. During the assembly, teachers and students highlight how they have been engaging with the concept of peace. Students made "peace" rocks, expressed "peace" in various languages, created posters and reminded all in attendance about the importance of understanding the differences between each other. Scholars will continue their discussions of peace as they join together to create books about peace during their library time in the days to come.

Following the assembly, students, parents, teachers and friends joined together in another common language: FOOD! As usual, PAFA and the parents of SCIS Pudong outdid themselves with an astounding array of food from around the world. Smiling faces could be seen everywhere.
